Blame it on the sheep.

Cain Asbell was an unremarkable guy until one of his stray sheep led him into a cave with a trapped fairy named Elise. In a blink of an eye Cain goes from pauper to lord when Elise helps him rescue the Princess Charlotte. There's just one hitch. Cain has to make his land the most prosperous in the country within 5 years. Should he fail, he'll lose everything and return to being another lowly shepherd. But if he manages to succeed, Cain will gain the Princess Charlotte's hand in marriage!

Sounds easy? Not if everyone in your kingdom is out to take advantage of your young age. Between slavers and bandits it's amazing Cain's still alive. But being a lord isn't all bad - he has the right to choose any woman he wants to go to bed with him...

While Cain is busy acquainting himself with the pleasures of becoming a lord and learning to rule fairly, his competitors are already stirring against him.

It's been almost five years since Cain Asbell first rescued Princess Charlotte and went from pauper to lord with the help of Elise. With his country under attack by the armies of Tedmond and Tsubaki missing, there's little hope to rally the people of Norland to fight off the intruders. Although nights with the former slave Tia are helping to keep Cain's spirits up, the darkness of despair is slowly growing...

Meanwhile, the continued state of war has not hampered the life of the group of roaming 'chivalrous thieves' known as the Emerald. The continued assault that is breaking Norland is lining Tedmond's pockets with gold and making an opportunity too good to pass up...

Even with Francis occupied elsewhere, things are still looking bleak for Norland: but could the solution to Cain's problems lie under his very nose? Could Chiffon have a way to save the day? Or might the answer lie in ... an alliance?
